WHY ATTEND?

ship.energy is pleased to introduce the Maritime Risk & Resilience Forum, a new one-day forum focused on the commercial, legal, operational and financial risks shaping today's shipping and bunkering sectors.

Geopolitical tension, sanctions, volatile energy prices, tighter regulation, fuel quality disputes, counterparty failures and growing commercial pressure have made strong risk management vital across the shipping and bunkering value chain.

Under the headline theme, 'Understanding, Managing and Mitigating Risk Across the Shipping and Bunkering Value Chain', MRRF26 will bring together senior experts to share practical insight, real-world experience and strategies for protecting businesses in an increasingly unpredictable market. The programme will examine the full range of risks facing the maritime sector.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

- Bunker Buyers
- Fuel Traders & Suppliers
- Shipowners & Operators
- Investors & Brokers
- Ports & Terminals
- Regulators & Policymakers
- Technology Providers
- Risk & Compliance Professionals
- Service Providers
